

Prophecies for the Year.

Professor Naptali Herz Imber, the looker into futurity, is out with another set of prophecies for the future. "In the year 1897," he says, "a brainy many will die in England, and in America one of great wealth. Also, a crowned head of Europe will be laid low. Earthquakes will do great damage both in Japan and America, and if the Pacific ocean is calm when they occur the shocks and their results will be seriously felt in the United States. If the sea is stormy, however this will not be the case."

In Europe the cholera will ravage portions of that country. In Turkey there will be a fearful outbreak of riot and slaughter, and Spain will be greatly humiliated.

"In the United States, particularly in California, there will be great prosperity—so great, in fact, that it will serve to recall the golden age. Much of this prosperity for California will be the result of the finding of new markets for the States products in the lately united Republic of Greater Central America, and to hasten the developments of these markets the State should establish agencies there—a plan which would work well, as the English have already well proved in the past."

"United Central America, however, will have to undergo one more warlike convulsion, this between the forces of progress and such as oppose advancement before she will finally know prosperity and peace."

Mrs. Hartly Pardoned.

Yesterday morning the Board of Pardons granted a pardon to Mrs. Hartley. The vote in her favor stood Governor Sadler, Judge Bonfield and Judge Massay. Against: Judge Belknap and Attorney General Judge. Attorney James Dennis made her fight before the Board, and as soon as the pardon was granted he sent her word to the prison. On hearing the good news she burst into tears and became hysterical.

She had hoped against hope before and suffered the disappointments, so when she heard the news, the long strain was over and she gave way to her feelings, as is the usual way with women who are overcome by strong emotion.

Mr. Patterson's cider is getting to be the most popular brand in the market. He says, however, that people who take his demijohns never bring them back, and all who now have them are requested to return them at once. Selling cider at 50 cents a gallon and throwing in a dollar demijohn is not profitable.

MONGOLIAN PHEASANTS.

Nevada Should Make the Experiment With Them.

In last Sunday's Examiner is an interesting article from the pen of Joaquin Miller regarding Mongolian pheasants. He says that ten years ago a hundred were imported from China to Oregon and now that State is teeming with them. They are delicious eating and they live on the worms and insects which destroy orchards. The result of the increase in these birds has been to rescue the Oregon apple orchards from the various pests that at one time threatened to destroy them.

California has neglected to protect these birds and in consequence, while California apples are nearly all worm eaten, the Oregon apples are sound as a nut and command a better market.

Nevada is destined to be a great apple country and the Legislature should provide for the securing of a few pairs of these birds to liberate in Nevada. They would in a few years furnish protection to the orchardist and abundant game for the sportsman, as they breed rapidly and are very hardy.

Flimmed the Boys.

A few nights ago a man who seemed to have plenty of money and was very drunk, stumbled into a saloon and made a good deal of noise when he reached the bar. He wanted everybody to drink, but didn't seem to know just what he wanted himself. He had on a big overcoat and presently a stranger slipped in and slyly took a bottle of gin out of his coat pocket in sight of everybody, and getting behind the man's back took a drink and passed it around. Everybody seemed to like the idea of having fun with the old man. While deliberating what to drink he was finally asked by the stranger to take some gin.

He said "Never on your life," and explained that he never drank gin at a bar, but he got his own gin from San Francisco, prime old London Dock, and he offered to bet that he could produce a bottle of gin that couldn't be beat in Carson. He displayed some cash and finally the crowd got in. They bet him that he didn't have any gin with him, and after he got everybody in, he reached for his inside pocket and produced a bottle of the liquor.

"Here's luck boys," he said as he raked in about $40, then he staggered out and floundered along the street hunting another saloon. Meanwhile the stranger who had pulled the bottle out of his outside pocket had disappeared.

A Queer Contrast.

The press is giving considerably prominence to the fact that Robert Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, has finally settled down to be the leader of Chicago's exclusive Social Set.

The society leaders of Chicago have formed a Cotillion Club and Robert Lincoln is at the head of it. One could hardly imagine a greater contrast than the respective careers of sire and son in this particular instance. The father was called on to take the helm of State at a time when the greatest nation of the earth was being tested in the crucible of a civil war and with a brain for administration never surpassed, an iron will coupled with the gentlest humanity that ever enobled a man, he brought a nation out of its peril and left behind him a legacy of fame and honor that will be green in the memories of men a thousand years from now, while his son, after being given numerous opportunities to distinguish himself in public life, casts them aside to become a leader of a Porkopolis Cotillion Club.

Home Burned

The residence of Wm. Settlemeir burned to the ground Monday evening. The family were playing cards until 10 o'clock and when one of the boys went up stairs he found the whole upper story in flames.

Very little was saved and the insurance was only $400 although the home was a very nice one. The place is located about a mile from Fred Dresslers.

Six Men Killed.

Pittsburg, Jan. 12.—A magazine in the Pennsylvania Torpedo Company, limited, at Shamokin, Pennsylvania, thirteen miles from here, blew up this morning, and completely demolished the building and tore a large hole in the ground. It is thought that at least six men were killed. Nothing is left of the bodies.

Jim Newlands is spending a few days in Carson in the interest of his new cheese.

A Lively Case.

Yesterday the case of Wm. Uren, charged with assaulting Elkin Cohn, came up before Judge Stone. All the Italians that could be found in several counties were present and lived upon the Uren side of the house. Cohn sat on the other side. A question involving a ranch came up. Cohn said he owned part of it. When asked what constituted his share he answered: "It is none of your business, you needn't know that, I won't tell you etc." Despite the pleadings of the Judge, he continued these evasive answers, and got in a muddle with Alf Chartz, who represented Uren.

He further told of an alleged beating he received at the defendants hands, and then wound up by saying that if he had a pistol he would have killed his assailant. All the witnesses swore to the contrary and said that Cohn was bothering Uren and that he simply pushed him aside.

District Attorney McGowan stated that he had taken the trouble to inquire into the case and found that it was mere malice that prompted Cohn to make the complaint because Uren would not sell his ranch at an extremely small figure and that his tale of the assault was a complete fabrication, and he also recommended that the cost of the case be assessed upon Cohn. This advice was followed and Cohn had a cost bill upon his shoulders, in addition to seeing the defendant liberated.

He Was Mistaken.

Private Secretary Kelley came over from Carson and spent the day in Reno yesterday. Mr. Kelley says he was greatly surprised to find out that the private secretary had so many duties to perform. He says he has been exceedingly busy since taking the office and is free to admit that he was mistaken when he advocated abolishing the office on the grounds of nothing to do.

Mr. Kelly returned to Carson this morning.—Gazette.

A good many people outside of Carson imagine that there is nothing to do in the Capitol building but draw salaries.

Four years ago there was a public clamor that had to be appeased in some way and in a fit of economy the legislature cut the pay of the deputies down one third and then passed bills which doubled their duties.

A Boy With a Purpose.

Patrick McCafferty, is a young fifteen year old boy who is a candidate for page of the Assembly. He told the writer yesterday that he was anxious to get the place because he wanted to get enough money to go to the State University and secure an education. When a boy has a definite purpose like this in view he should be encouraged. Such a boy deserves anything that the legislature can give him.

Rumored Resignation.

It is rumored that Judge Mack will shortly place his resignation in the hands of the Governor. It is said the move is because of his duties as administrator of the Kirman estate. The property involved is close on to $800,000 and as he continues the administration of the estate he cannot give proper attention to the duties of District Judgeship.
